

A Little Piece of OREGON

The sweetest way to end the sweetest day

Let's be honest — the majority of wedding favors never make it home. "I love this monogrammed photo frame and know exactly where to put it," said no one ever. Most trinkets suffer the same fate as other "meh" things in life: relegated to a cardboard box in a dusty corner of the garage.

The unspoken (but totally legit) rule of wedding favors is this: Give people something they'll enjoy.

Like toffee.

Donna Holm has handcrafted artisan toffee for over 30 years using the same recipe. Each batch is made with the finest ingredients — hazelnuts, dark chocolate, butter and sugar — and packaged for maximum smileage.

It's magical, really.

Her business partner (who also happens to be her daughter-in-law) agrees. "We put a little bit of happiness into every bag of Holm Made Toffee," says Randi Holm.

If you're looking for the perfect wedding favor that your guests will eat up — literally — Holm Made Toffee is a crowd-pleasing and thoughtful way to show a little love. "Brides and grooms tell us that guests scoured tables for any leftover favors at the end of the night. Our toffee is gratefully received and quickly put to use," gushes Randi.

Holm Made Toffee's confections celebrate all that is good about Oregon. And nothing conveys "uniquely Oregon" quite like the hazelnut. (Fun fact: It's the official state nut.) "We source our hazelnuts from a family-owned farm in Monmouth, Oregon and pick them up in person from the owners," Randi notes.

The Holm Made Toffee lineup is an impressive mix of traditional and trendy flavors such as Original, Himalayan Pink Salt, Cardamom Vanilla, Espresso, Lavender, and Spicy Red Pepper. (Another fun fact: their Lavender toffee was awarded Best Chocolate Candy at the 2014 Oregon Chocolate Festival.)

MAKE IT "PERFECTLY YOU"

"We love helping couples customize their favors," says Randi. "We offer a variety of bagged or boxed options and can create custom stickers with your names, wedding date or monogram." Want to match the ribbon color to your wedding palette? Not a problem. You can even send Donna and Randi your own ribbon or lace to use in the packaging of your treats.

What about a custom flavor? Where does your inspiration come from? Bourbon? Bacon? Pumpkin spice? Chances are, the duo at Holm Made Toffee can match a toffee flavor to your personality. "We want to make your special day a little sweeter and will always try to accommodate your wild ideas." -WV

After your sparkler send-off leaves people ooh-ing and aah-ing and guests shuffle their tired tootsies home, the wedding favor becomes the last remaining takeaway from your celebration. Make it delightful. Make it meaningful. Make it so good that your guests tell the story about "this one time, at a fabulous wedding, I opened up this little box in front of me and..."
